NECK CREAM - it's the neck's best thing

Do we need it? Oh yes, we do especially at the start of our mid 30's some even sooner... Why, you ask? Well, the neck and chest (décolleté) skin can be very fine and thin, not to mention over the years of wearing v-neck clothing, spraying copious amounts of highly scented and alcohol based perfumes do add significantly to the sun damage in this area. Did you know spraying your perfume in this area can prematurely cause your skin to age at a rapid pace? And some perfumes actually attract the sun to this area like a magnet. So, by our early 40's our skin on the neck and chest starts to look dry, wrinkly and uneven in colour hence, the dreaded 'turkey neck'.

What do I recommended to do?

First and foremost, stop spraying your perfume on this area and use a 30+ zinc oxide sunscreen daily, such as the Joyce Blok 30+. And from our late 20's to early 30's start using NECK CREAM. Your Neck Cream must deliver several key benefits. Firstly, it must be able to minimize the appearance of lines and wrinkles. Secondly, it needs to deeply hydrate and moisturize improving the skin's appearance in colour, firmness and texture. Get the most out of your neck cream by applying it properly in upward motions every night. Improvement will take time so be patient and regular with it's use. Lastly, don't be fooled by glossy marketing... "Expensive and Fancy" packaging does not always mean better.
